YOUR SHOES, THEIR HOPES

Help sponsor black shoes for needy students

Initiative spearheaded by supplier that donates footwear to Laotian children

ABARO is encouraging corporations to sponsor the first black school shoes for underprivileged children.

What began as a small-scale corporate social responsibility (CSR) effort has turned into an annual initiative benefitting thousands of school-going children.

The Abaro school shoes brand under Resta Enterprise Sdn Bhd tackles one of the most visible signs of poverty among children by giving them new school shoes to attend school with dignity and joy.

Now the shoe supplier is inviting corporations to join them in helping underprivileged children own their first pair of black school shoes.

Resta Enterprise Sdn Bhd announced the initiative to replace white shoes with black shoes.

Reporting on how poor children are shodded or wear ill-fitting shoes, said Resta Enterprise Sdn Bhd Director Teri Soh.

She said several children had severe blisters in their feet.

"Shoes are a basic necessity that is essential for the school day. When we give shoes to a child, we give so many other things including hope, dignity and joy," said Soh.

"A new pair of shoes can be life-changing for kids in need. School staff and parents tell us that students with new proper shoes show an increase in self-esteem, improved behaviour, higher attendance and participation in classes," Soh shared.

From collating thousands of feet sizes to distributing shoes accurately, Soh's team is well-versed in the whole shoe-giving charity through trial and error.

"We have seen the impact of shoes through trial and error."
